The clients tried to make the room appeal to more people by taking out as much as possible and keeping it neutral with white. Adding color with a lifeguard themed lampshade, sailcloth curtains, a colorful coffee table and pillows make the space more inviting in this seaside house.

This living room looks small and busy with the furniture arrangement and fabric pattern. Solid patterns were used to focus the eyes and furniture rearranged to look more spacious. An electric fireplace adds warmth and a focal point for the room and the area rug helps to define the space.

The clients tried to make the room appeal to more people by taking out as much as possible and keeping it neutral with white. The blue paint matches the sky seen through all the windows bringing the outdoors inside making it feel more spacious. Replacing the rectangular table with an oval table adds space and color for interest and to draw the eye across the space.
