A PERSONAL STORY ABOUT STAGING TO ATTRACT RENTAL TENANTS

About 5 years ago, Farhaana was leasing a two-bedroom two-bathroom condo in Upper Marlboro, MD. She decided to downgrade and found a cute smaller unit. Unfortunately, the owner of the new unit wanted immediate occupancy. Farhaana needed to get out of her current lease despite having one month remaining. She negotiated with the condo owner to stage the condo and let potential new renters view the condo throughout the week so that the owner would not lose out on one month's rent. As a result of Farhaana's staging, the condo was rented within 1 week and Farhaana was able to move out, saving the owner money, and removing the stress of worrying about how he would obtain new renters.
